Toyota Motor (7203) | Japan

Toyota Plans to Deploy 400,000 In-House-Developed Robots from 2028

Key Takeaways

- Toyota has outlined plans to deploy its ELEY humanoid robot alongside factory renovation/rebuilds from 2028 onward.
- Expects to deploy 400k robots total incl. 150k units at Toyota Motor Corporation, 250k units across group companies.
- ELEY is equipped with a two-fingered robotic arm, and moves on wheels rather than walking on two legs; weighs ~50 kg.
- Toyota has already brought in humanoid robots made by Agility Robotics and general-purpose robots from Walden Robotics at facilities in North America.
- While deployment has so far been limited, this announcement is likely to prompt investors to take another look at Toyota's robotics/FA ambitions.

News: Toyota held an investor briefing at Toyota Motor Europe, its European regional HQ. At the event, CTO Hiroki Nakajima announced plans to deploy a total of 400,000 robots from 2028 (150,000 at Toyota Motor Corporation, 250,000 units across group companies).

During the briefing, Toyota demonstrated ELEY (Embodied Learning robot for Enhanced Yield), a robot powered by the LBM (Large Behavior Models) genAI technology developed by Toyota Research Institute in the US, performing the task of folding T-shirts. ELEY is capable of learning autonomously through activities such as transferring parts between containers, enabling it to identify the most efficient way to perform a given task.

Toyota emphasized that robots are not intended to replace human workers. It instead envisions a future in which humans and robots coexist, with robots supporting workers in physically demanding tasks. The focus now will likely be on which production processes ELEY will be deployed in.

STOCK RATINGS

Morgan Stanley uses a relative rating system using terms such as Overweight, Equal-weight, Not-Rated or Underweight (see definitions below). Morgan Stanley does not assign ratings of Buy, Hold or Sell to the stocks we cover. Overweight, Equal-weight, Not-Rated and Underweight are not the equivalent of buy, hold and sell. Investors should carefully read the definitions of all ratings used in Morgan Stanley Research. In addition, since Morgan Stanley Research contains more complete information concerning the analyst's views, investors should carefully read Morgan Stanley Research, in its entirety, and not infer the contents from the rating alone. In any case, ratings (or research) should not be used or relied upon as investment advice. An investor's decision to buy or sell a stock should depend on individual circumstances (such as the investor's existing holdings) and other considerations.

Global Stock Ratings Distribution

(as of August 31, 2026)

The Stock Ratings described below apply to Morgan Stanley's Fundamental Equity Research and do not apply to Debt Research produced by the Firm.

For disclosure purposes only (in accordance with FINRA requirements), we include the category headings of Buy, Hold, and Sell alongside our ratings of Overweight, Equal-weight, Not-Rated and Underweight. Morgan Stanley does not assign ratings of Buy, Hold or Sell to the stocks we cover. Overweight, Equal-weight, Not-Rated and Underweight are not the equivalent of buy, hold, and sell but represent recommended relative weightings (see definitions below). To satisfy regulatory requirements, we correspond Overweight, our most positive stock rating, with a buy recommendation; we correspond Equal-weight and Not-Rated to hold and Underweight to sell recommendations, respectively.
